Our lawyers are categorized by (a) Department (b) team and (c) location for the convenience of clients. A department is a specialized functional unit with special expertise or responsibility mostly relevant for client. On the other hand, a team is smaller group, compared to department, created mostly for internal purposes. A lawyer may have expertise suitable for more than one department hence his/her name are appearing in more than one department. However this is not the case in team. On the other hand, we often create practice group for niche practice area e.g. employment, M & A comprising lawyers from different departments, teams. Niche practice group often have non-lawyers as member e.g. consultant, paralegal and management staff.
